Workers’ compensation COVID-19 presumption

Effective Wednesday, April 8, 2020, a new law states that certain employees who contract COVID-19 are presumed to have an occupational disease covered by the Minnesota workers’ compensation law. This is a summary of the law; the complete law text is available at the above link.

Section 1.

A new paragraph (f) is added to Minnesota Statutes § 176.011, subdivision 15, of the workers’ compensation law, which applies to occupational diseases. According to this new law, an employee who contracts COVID-19 is presumed to have an occupational disease arising out of and in the course of employment if the employee meets the requirements in clauses (1) and (2).

Clause 1

This part of the new law requires that the employee must be employed in one of the following occupations in order to qualify for the presumption:

• a licensed peace officer under Minn. Stat. § 626.84, subd. 1, firefighter, paramedic or emergency medical technician;
• a nurse or health care worker, correctional officer or security counselor employed by the state or a political subdivision at a corrections, detention or secure treatment facility;
• a health care provider, nurse or assistive employee employed in a health care, home care or long-term care setting, with direct COVID-19 patient care or ancillary work in COVID-19 patient units; or
• a person required to provide child care to first responders and health care workers under Executive Order 20-02 and Executive Order 20-19.

Clause 2

• The employee’s contraction of COVID-19 must be confirmed by a positive laboratory test or, if a test was not available for the employee, as diagnosed, based on the employee’s symptoms, by a licensed physician, licensed physician’s assistant or licensed advanced practice registered nurse (APRN).
• A copy of the positive test or documentation of the diagnosis must be provided to the employer or the employer’s workers’ compensation insurer.
Clause 3

If the employee meets the requirements of clauses 1 and 2:

- the employer or insurer shall only rebut the presumption that the employee’s contraction of COVID-19 is an occupational disease by showing the employee’s employment was not a direct cause of the disease; and
- if the insurer denies liability for the workers’ compensation claim, the denial must meet the requirements for denials in Minn. Stat. § 176.221, subd. 1.

Clause 4

- The date of injury for an employee who has contracted COVID-19 is the date the employee was unable to work due to contraction of COVID-19 or was unable to work due to symptoms that were later diagnosed as COVID-19, whichever occurred first.

Clause 5

- An employee who has contracted COVID-19, but does not meet the requirements of clauses 1 and 2, is not prohibited from claiming an occupational disease as provided in other paragraphs of the occupational disease law (Minn. Stat. § 176.011, subd. 15) or from claiming a workers’ compensation injury under subdivision 16.

Clause 6

- The commissioner of the Department of Labor and Industry must provide a detailed report by Jan. 15, 2021, about the handling of COVID-19 workers’ compensation claims. The commissioner must give the report to the Workers’ Compensation Advisory Council, and the chairs and ranking minority members of the House of Representatives and Senate committees with jurisdiction over workers’ compensation.

Effective date

This law is effective for employees who contract COVID-19 on or after the day following final enactment and sunsets May 1, 2021.
